“ So sorry for loss. I did not know your Mother very well. She sent me a card when our daughter received her PHD of congratulations to her. I made a point to stop and see her and we had a wonderful talk about the swanson family. I was told by my father that I was named after her but spelled different. She was a very gracious Lady. Sorry I never had a chance to meet you and family. Once again sorry for your loss.

“ I could not reach her book "Pronounce It Perfectly in English" in 1995, when I undertook introducing 10-year-old Lithuans into English handwriting and phonetic transcription, which I succeeded to simplify for beginners. Only yesterday I came across it. Regretting so much my total ignorance. Browsing the Internet I discovered the sad news and can but join the condolences. I am happy to have her book at last.

With gratitude
