“ I remember so much about my grandma. How she walked everywhere because she never drove; how Friday was our night to go out to eat as a family, especially at the old Imperial Inn. She always called us her lovebugs and was always proud of our accomplishments. She loved her great grandchildren so much but was always ready to show tough love whenever it was called for. She was my fair buddy. We would go together and just look in the buildings, saying hello to the people she knew. And we would just enjoy the food. She never missed a year unless she was out of state or last year, when there was no fair to go to. Things just won't be the same without her. I will miss her so much.
