“ Mom, I miss you so much. It's Sunday which is the day we usually talked. I miss the banter between you and dad while you were on your separate phones, talking to me. I remember one of the last times you were home, we were playing Apple To Apples with Michelle and Mara. You still had a sharp and funny wit even though some of the current popular references eluded you. You always were humble about your cooking but I'm telling you I never was disappointed in your meals. You were and awesome cook and baker. No one made cookies like you. Love and miss you bunches.
