“ I met Mark around 1976. We were good friends and as life happens we grew apart. We kept in touch during his brief correctional stint and continued to keep in touch after that. He liked Charlie Daniel's (Searching for a rainbow) and Farrah Fawcett. Had a good eye for art. Back in the day we would climb his Father's Ham radio tower for fun. Although I'm sure his parents wouldn't have approved. I remember his first car had no heater and shag carpet on the dash. He was a caring and compassionate person. He was one of those friends you make when your young that will always hold a fond memory for me. R.I.P. my friend.
