“ My deepest sympathy goes out to Terri's family. I did not know Terri personally but every week when I received the The Putnam County Record the first thing I did was read her stories. They were always so heartwarming and so many of them brought back some wonderful memories of how life used to be. I was shocked and so sad when I read in today's paper that she had passed away. I will truly miss her stories.

“ It was with great sadness that I read of Terri's death. She was very supportive when my sister Allyn Sitterly and I worked with others to maintain a log cabin in City-County Park.

I so enjoyed her stories about being raised on the farm and stories about her grandparents. Hope they are all dancing together on the gold streets of Heaven

Teri was a compassionate advocate for so many causes that varied from improving community life, building better resources for charities to help locally and nationwide, and advocating for specific people in need -and so much more. She had a loving heart, a sharp mind, and the ability to write in a way that brought attention to and passion for those things in readers of her stories and articles. Her reminders of the past also tugged on hearts and minds. Above all, though, she was a trustworthy journalist whose ethics controlled her hand as she wrote. I am thankful she was here and I know she will be missed.
